1. INTRODUCTION

This document has been developed to provide help and guidance for staff that are asked to complete a non-criminal investigation as part of, and to inform, the decision making processes of the interagency protection of vulnerable adults procedure.

The Investigating agency(ies) will have been identified through the inter agency strategy discussion and/or meeting process together with the scope and remit of the investigation.

The responsibility for creating the strategy for the single agency investigation and for the selection of a suitably experienced /qualified member of staff to complete the investigation will remain with the investigating agency. This guidance does not replace the disciplinary procedures of any partner agencies, but should be read in conjunction with and may inform such proceedings.

Although the task of completing the investigation and report may be delegated to a suitably qualified and experienced member of staff within the agency, it is important that the report and recommendations are fully endorsed by the agency before submission to the Chair of the POVA Strategy Meeting.

The guidance aims to complement the interagency policy ensuring a consistent response across agencies involved in the process and sets a standard for the content and the quality of any investigations undertaken, along with any reports produced as a result of such investigations

The guidance has been devised to be of help to those individuals asked to carry out a protection of vulnerable adult investigation as a result of a strategy discussion or meeting.' This could be staff in statutory organisations such as care coordinators (social workers or nurses) or Care and Social Services Inspectorate for Wales (CSSIW) Inspectors. Best practice would suggest that staff working in the Independent and Voluntary sector organisations, such as direct service providers or care agencies do not undertake non-criminal investigations. However, it is recognised that resource implications mean that this is not immediately possible for all areas. Where providers do undertake investigations, it is urged that this should not be the manager of service area under investigation.

2. KEY POINTS OF MANAGING NON-CRIMINAL INVESTIGATIONS

- 2.1 As the person who has been asked to undertake the investigation please read through this document before you begin planning.
- 2.2 If you require any further clarification about this document or the tasks you have been asked to complete ensure you speak again with the Designated Lead Manager (DLM) who is coordinating this protection of vulnerable adult process.

- 2.3 It is important to conduct the investigation with honesty and integrity as you look to establish the facts through an impartial and objective approach. All parties relevant to the investigation must be considered equally in order to prevent judgments being made at the outset.
- 2.4 In using the Non-criminal Investigation Guidance, it is important that as the investigating officer you are aware that individuals participating in the investigation process do so, on a voluntary basis unless they are a direct employee. In the case of allegations against staff members, consideration must be given to involving the relevant Human Resources department.
- 2.5 Be mindful of confidentiality during the investigation; do not give out specific information that is pertinent to the case.
- 2.6 Should a criminal matter come to light during the investigation, you must contact the police or the DLM who chaired the meeting immediately. If a regulatory matter comes to light it should be referred to CSSIW. The investigation should be suspended until the police and/or CSSIW provide clarity on how to proceed.
- 2.7 You need to be mindful that if this were the case, the evidence obtained as part of the investigation, as well as the report, may be shared with relevant partner agencies to investigate an alleged or suspected criminal offence.

3. PLANNING THE INVESTIGATION

- 3.1 When it has been identified that an investigation under the Protection of Vulnerable Adult procedures is required the following points will need to be clarified during a strategy discussion or meeting before the investigation can begin:
 - Identify which agencies or individuals are to be involved in the process
 - Identify which individuals need to be interviewed
 - The allegation/s to be investigated
 - The timescale for the investigation to be completed and a report provided
 - The mental capacity of the vulnerable adult/s with regard to their participation in the investigation
 - Any organisational employment policies that may need to be taken into account
 - Any communication issues taking account of diversity and special needs of all individuals to be interviewed.

- 3.2 As the investigating officer, you will need to plan the investigation thoroughly. Where a joint investigation is to be undertaken, for example an investigation between the CSSIW and a provider agency, both parties will need to be clear on their roles and responsibilities throughout the investigative process.
- 3.3 The investigating officer will need to gather all available background information prior to commencing interviews in order to maximise the interview opportunity.

Prompts for planning the investigation

- 3.4 The following points are provided as prompts for issues you may need to consider whilst planning your investigation.
NB This list is neither exhaustive nor compulsory

- Case history and any recent changes in service provider or package

- Acceptance of assistance

3.5 Where an investigation into an allegation of financial abuse has been requested the investigating officer will need to establish whether any formal or legal arrangements are in place for managing the service user's finances eg appointee, agent, attorney or deputy. Where service users are known, or have been previously known, to the Local Authority the LA finance team or other appropriate department may already have this information and be able to provide copies of the relevant documents, including where appropriate, registration documents.

3.6 The following points are provided for the investigating officer to consider when investigating financial abuse:

- Does the service user have the mental capacity to manage their finances specific to the situation/circumstances?

(Please refer to the Mental Capacity Act 2005 and Codes of Practice for further guidance).

- Is Power of Attorney in operation? If yes, in whose name and from what date?
- Is Enduring Power of Attorney in operation? If yes, in whose name and from what date?
- Has it been registered, i.e. the person's incapacity acknowledged?
- Is a lasting Power of Attorney in operation – if yes, in whose name and from what date? Has the Lasting Power of Attorney been registered?"
- Is there a solicitor involved? If yes, give contact details
- What assets does the individual have?
- Is there a will? If yes, where is this kept?
- Who assists/ manages the finances?
- Who has access to bank/savings accounts/assets etc? is there a third party mandate in place?"
- If living in a domestic setting is the income absorbed into general household expenditure?

- If living in a service setting does the setting operate individual or 'pooled' accounts?

How much disposable income/personal monies do they have each week? Is this enough and are there any difficulties in accessing this? "Have there been any changes in spending patterns?

- Is there outstanding debt?
- What are the arrangements for paying the costs of the care needs, e.g. service used/nursing/transport/domiciliary/day care/leisure/health?
- Is anyone else paying towards these?
- Is the adult supported (this includes financial support) by the local social services?
- Does another social services department support the adult (this includes financial support)?
- If yes, who
- Do they receive ILF or Direct Payments for their care needs and who manages the receipt of monies payments?
- Consider any financial management policy used or finance records/documentation used by the organisation. In service settings staff will be maintaining cash transaction records and sometimes payment records so it would be helpful for the investigating officer to see these.

4. PLANNING THE INTERVIEWS

- 4.1 The investigating officer will need to plan the structure of the investigation and identify the purpose of each interview, meeting with any co-investigators to organise the various stages of the investigation.
- 4.2 Identify who needs to be interviewed as victims, witnesses or as alleged perpetrators and agree who would make the necessary arrangements.
- 4.3 Identify the documentation to be examined and questioned as part of the interview.
- 4.4 Plan the schedule of interviews; dates, times and most appropriate place to conduct the interview and ensure any individual supporting the alleged victim or witnesses are informed. Wherever possible or where time permits, this should be confirmed in writing as good practice. Consider the needs of the interviewee i.e. communication aids or interpretation.
- 4.5 When arranging the interview try and find a venue that will allow the interviewee (complainant, alleged victim, witness or alleged perpetrator), to speak freely and without pressure. Avoid using the scene of the incident if at all possible
- 4.6 Ensure that the interviewees are aware that a person who is a friend or representative, not acting in a professional capacity and not involved in the investigation, can support them through the interview, ensuring that confidentiality is maintained.

- 4.7 Consider the method of recording the interviews, e.g. written, audio, or video. Be mindful of any retention and storage requirements under the Data Protection Act 1998.
- 4.8 Consider the availability and appropriateness of use of the video facilities within your local Public Protection Unit.
- 4.9 Clarify whether the Vulnerable Adult would like to be supported during the interview and if so, by whom.
- 4.10 Consider the use of advocacy services to provide support to the vulnerable adult if appropriate.
- 4.11 If a person agrees to be interviewed and asks for legal representation or any other support when attending an interview, the investigating officer should take advice from their DLM or legal department before proceeding.
- 4.12 Devise specific questions to be asked of each person to be interviewed. Consider the number of questions to be asked ensuring a few questions are designed to open the interview and put the person being interviewed at ease. Next develop some questions around the specific incident or concern and include a few questions to clarify any points and close the interview.

(Suggestions of questions can be viewed in appendix 2)

- 4.13 Remember to avoid asking leading questions so as to prevent encouraging an interviewee to agree or give particular information. Wherever possible ask open ended questions to ensure the interviewee gives their own information.

5. INTERVIEWING THE VULNERABLE ADULT

- 5.1 The investigating officer may need to interview a vulnerable adult who may be the alleged victim, the alleged perpetrator or a witness.
- 5.2 If it has been agreed during the strategy discussion or at the strategy meeting that a vulnerable adult is to be interviewed, ensure that any information about their capacity and communication needs have been considered, and the availability of appropriate support to be provided.
- 5.3 It is important to build rapport with the vulnerable adult to reduce anxiety, allay fears and give confidence to the person being interviewed.
- 5.4 If you have limited information available regarding the vulnerable adult, their capacity or abilities begin with general questions to ensure the interview is conducted at the right level. Try and establish the individual's understanding of time, for example in terms of times of the day of the interview or days of the week that particular events occur in their lives. Try to get another view of the vulnerable adult's level of understanding, before focussing questions on the allegation or concerns.

- 5.5 Explain that you may need to take notes, or audio/video the interview. The transcripts of the interview can be made available upon request.
- 5.6 Ensure that the vulnerable adult understands that they can have a break at any time and check throughout the duration of the interview that they are alright to continue.
- 5.7 Ensure that you give the vulnerable adult the opportunity to ask you any questions about the process before or after the interview to reduce any concerns they may have as far as possible.

6. INTERVIEWING THE ALLEGED PERPETRATOR

- 6.1 The alleged perpetrator is usually interviewed after the other interviews have taken place. This interview will need to be planned separately and questions devised to support or refute information gathered during the course of the investigation. It is appropriate to begin with a question specifically about the allegation, incident or concern. "I am investigating an allegation / complaint / concern that has been made about you..." (describe the specific nature of the allegation / complaint / concern).
- 6.2 The alleged perpetrator should then be asked his/her opinion "What would you like to say about this?" This gives the alleged perpetrator the opportunity to respond to the allegation/s.
- 6.3 Open questions may encourage the alleged perpetrator to discuss the situation and describe what happened.
- 6.4 Following discussion regarding the specific incident you may wish to ask more general questions to identify the context within which the allegation / complaint / concern relates.
- 6.5 You may wish to view the suggestions in appendix 2 to assist with the selection of appropriate questions for this interview.

7. UNDERTAKING THE INTERVIEWS

- 7.1 the interviews play an important part in enabling the investigating officer to gather new information, clarify information already provided and establish fact to enable a decision to be reached regarding the validity of the allegations. Thorough planning will assist in maximising this opportunity.
- 7.2 Introduce yourself and explain your role and why you are there e.g. I am conducting an investigation into allegations / concerns that have been made under the Protection of Vulnerable Adult procedures and I need to talk to you as part of this process.

- 7.3 Explain that each person interviewed will be asked a set of planned questions and some further questions may be asked to elicit further information. In some circumstances further interviews may be required should new information be disclosed. This information may require further exploration or clarification.
- 7.4 Advise the person being interviewed that the information they give will be used to draw together a report on the concerns/allegations.
- 7.5 Clarify that there is an expectation that the interviewee will respect confidentiality and not discuss this matter outside of the formal interview process.
- 7.6 Tell the person being interviewed that the interview is confidential, however it may be necessary and appropriate to share any information given with other partner agencies to ensure that any risk of harm to a vulnerable person can be managed. Any decision to further share the information will be the subject of an inter-agency strategy meeting and will be proportionate and in compliance with legislation and guidance, for example to the police if a criminal matter was suspected. Where possible they will be consulted before such a decision is taken and informed of the outcome.
- 7.7 Explain that a record of the interview will be made through a written record or an audio tape to ensure accuracy. Advise that the individual is able to have a copy of the statement taken of their individual interview if they request it.
- 7.8 An interview reminder sheet is available at appendix 3 to assist you.

8. EXAMINING THE EVIDENCE

- 8.1 It is important that any supporting documentation is considered e.g. care records, financial accounts, entries in the service diary, staff duty rotas, records of injury or visits to or by health professionals, EPOA confirming financial arrangements.
- 8.2 Record which documents you examined and the date you saw them noting the relevant information gained and whether it assists to support or dispute the allegations (see appendix 4). Note any further information that needs to be clarified as a result of viewing the document.

9. CONCLUDING THE INVESTIGATION

- 9.1 On completion of the interviews and document review the evidence you have gathered must be evaluated.

9.2 In a criminal investigation the evidence needs to be 'beyond all reasonable doubt'. However, when undertaking non criminal investigations the allegation is proved if the evidence is based upon the 'balance of probability' (i.e. more likely than not to have occurred on, cogent evidence.)

9.3 An investigator will often be faced with inconsistent evidence. An investigator must be able to weight all the evidence and explain why they have preferred one set of evidence over the inconsistent evidence in reaching their conclusion.

Evidence gathered will fall into one of the following categories:

- Direct evidence is what a person has experienced themselves.
- Hearsay evidence - is evidence of what a person has heard from another person. Apart from special circumstances hearsay evidence is usually excluded from criminal cases but can be presented in other places such as civil courts or disciplinary hearings
- Corroborated evidence is evidence that is supported or substantiated by another person or in some other way such as examination of records or by way of any contemporaneous recording
- Circumstantial evidence - is evidence not based on the facts in question but on various attendant circumstances, which may support the case from which the Investigating Officer might infer the occurrence of the fact in question such as evidence of bruising immediately following a shift worked by a particular member of staff.

(An evaluation tool is also provided at appendix 4 to assist you)

9.4 A Protection of Vulnerable Adults investigation report will need to be provided. The report must be given to the DLM who has chaired the Protection of Vulnerable Adults process. The report will be used to inform the decision-making at the strategy meeting and may be used with other information gathered to coordinate an Adult protection case conference.

(An investigation report format is provided at appendix 5)
